The S. S. Undine left Foochow Sunday on the 21st, Amoy on the 22nd, Swatow on the 23rd, arriving here this morning, at 7.30. Reports strong N.E. winds and thick rainy weather on her passage down. Ship Ashlea towed to sea from Foochow on the 21st ins. The Dilbeeth was to follow on the 22nd or 23rd. Saw steamer Ach going into Foochow on the 21st. Passed steamer Fe-loong off Pyramid Point on the night of 21st. Steamer Shock-lee arrived in Foochow on the 20th.

At Amoy, the gun-boat Grasshopper had arrived from Melchen Sound where had she taken the Mosso Lorcha had long been "inested" by Lieut. Morant, whose constant vigilance, and indefatigable exertions for the suppression of Piracy are beyond all praise. Lieut. Morant, endeavoured to tow the lorcha down to Amoy, but owing to the state of the weather, was obliged to destroy her on the passage down, after taking out her crew, consisting of 26 men.

The British steamer Expert, which arrived in port on the 23rd instant, reports that the Straits-pore arrived in Shanghai on the 19th January, Dumbarton in Shanghai on the 19th, saw the S. S. Anaf off Single Island, on the 23rd at 6 P.M. experienced hard gales from N.E.

The Barque Peak, Captain Hatterick, hence to Melbourne and Sydney, got on a reef near Holden Island, in Lat. 2.44 S. Long. 107.30 E., at 4.30 A.M. on Monday the 11th December, she sustained much damage, having knocked off rudder, false keel, part of main keel and lower part of stern post. It was some time before she could be got into deep water, when she made 5 inches of water an hour. The governor of the Dutch settlement came to the vessel in a small steamer and rendered every assistance, he procured divers who examined the vessels bottom and it was found in a very shattered condition. The cargo was being discharged to get her into a small inner harbour, but there being no mechanics at the place it is feared the vessel will have to be condemned. At the time of the accident they had thick weather and a strong current setting to the South East. In case of condemnation, a ship would be engaged at Batavia to take on the cargo and passengers.

WE write yesterday, for the Daily Press of to-day some few lines, which will be found below expressing surprise that the pirates of the Lye-moon did not extend their operations to the harbor. Perhaps we may have supposed that this was an extravagant idea, which would put the boldness of the pirates in a strong light, even if it were not likely to be exactly realised. Fact however is stranger than fiction, and the deeds of the Hongkong pirates, more outrageous than imagination could anticipated. Last night they actually boarded a ship lying in the harbor. At about half past nine two armed boats ran along side the Mecklenburgh barque Albert Furse and the crews, armed with spears and swords rushed on board the vessel. The man on watch was severey wounded, but the noise attracted all hands on deck and roused the attention of the watch on board the next vessel. The Albert Furse has some opium on board and it is supposed that the intention of the pirates had been to kill the man on watch, secure the hatches and carry off the chests before an alarm could be raised.

THE King of the BELGIANS who has just died has been for many years a second Prince ALBERT in England. If the Princess CHARLOTTE had lived he would have filled the place that the late Prince Consort actually occupied, and perhaps it was partly through reflecting on this, though, of course in a greater degree through regard for his unstained character and unquestionable sagacity, that the Queen has shown in late years so much respect for his advice and so much anxiety to obtain it at all critical moments. In one way it is possible that harm has ensued from those high qualities themselves which made King LEOPOLD her counsellor, because it thus became inevitable that the Queen should consult him, should be guided in many cases by his opinion, and should consequently irritate that jealousy of German influence which is so easily inflamed in England. When the German Prince whom she married was no more, and the English people saw her turn to another German Prince at every period of difficulty, it was natural for many careless observers to suppose that she did this merely in obedience to German proclivities, although in reality her conduct was itself so natural that one may say she had no other course open to her. If the King of the BELGIANS was looked upon by the world as a man of such unimpeachable probity and of so much political wisdom that whenever it was proposed to submit an international question to arbitration, it was almost understood as a matter of course that the King of the BELGIANS should be arbiter,—it could hardly fail to happen that the Queen of ENGLAND,—related to him and a near neighbour,—should choose him for her guide and friend. It is certain moreover that in all the advice he may have given her, and in all the cases where his influence has told upon the current of events in Great Britain, his advice has been sound and constitutional,—his influence exerted for good. LEOPOLD was as little ambitious as a man could be, and when the brilliant prospects which had opened to him on his marriage were dashed to the ground by the Princess CHARLOTTE'S death, the feeling which drove him into seclusion was made up in a greater degree of private distress than of worldly disappointment. Then after a time there came to him not through his seeking but through the force of circumstances, renewed opportunities of taking a place in the world. Buried as he was at Claremont, it was to him that European statesmen turned when a King was wanted for Greece, but it was characteristic of Prince LEOPOLD, that he neither refused nor accepted the offered crown at first, being in fact ready to do any work in the world to which he was called if he saw his way to doing it well, and being of use, but at the same time unmoved by that thirst for personal distinction which would have prompted some men in his position to mount a throne on any terms. Ultimately he found that those conditions on which he had consented to undertake the government of Greece could not be obtained, and he quietly adhered to his resolution not to assume it without those terms. Perhaps when Otho had become domesticated at Athens, Greek statesmen may have thought it would have been better to have had LEOPOLD on any conditions. For LEOPOLD, however, a more agreeable fate was reserved, and in the tranquil sphere of usefulness he found amongst the Belgians, the late King was much happier, no doubt than he would have been condemned to a long fight with Athenian brigands, (in the mountains and in the cabinet.)

It has been for some time supposed that the death of the King of the BELGIANS would in some mysterious way loosen the fabric of European politics. The Emperor NAPOLEON, it was said, was merely waiting for this event to start a fresh idea, perhaps the extension of French frontiers Rhinewards, perhaps the assorption of the battle-field of Waterloo itself; there is always a school of politicians under the impression that NAPOLEON III. is meditating a deed of iniquitous violence. The looked for event has come at last, and the prophecies we speak of will be speedily justified or confounded, but we cannot see the signs which are supposed to indicate the movement of French armies, and the commencement of a European war. There is this to be said however with reference to French hankerings after the Rhine provinces which may or may not be stimulated by the death which has just taken place. English statesmen as a body have passed through the period of terrified distrust of France, which grew up during the earlier successes of the first NAPOLEON, and has only subsided in very recent years. Mr. KINGLAKE may smart beneath old memories, and hate the Emperor with inextinguishable hatred, but though he may write very brilliantly he will not carry public opinion with him to his conclusions. The Emperor of the FRENCH will not in the future find any reasonable whinis he may have with respect to European politics, much cramped by the interference of England, and even if he were to have designs upon the integrity of the Prussian Kingdom, it does not follow that the British government would offer an opinion on the measures he might take. The events of the Schleswig-Holstein war have alienated the sympathies of the English people from Prussia to such an extent that if the Rhine provinces really should come to be annexed to France, it would be rather with a sense of righteous retribution awarded, than with any emotion of alarm that men on the northern side of the channel, would regard the annexation.

No doubt the pirates of the Lye-moon will soon begin to cut out the vessels at anchor in the harbour, and levy contributions on houses lying at the outskirts of the town. To anyone unfamiliar with the usages of this place, it might seem that in waylaying most small vessels standing out to sea, they were acting with tolerable boldness, but in consideration of the fact that all the waters eastward of the new Mint, are regarded as the proper legitimate cruising ground for the rovers, we think they are playing rather a cowardly part in not venturing over the border now and then, and varying their operations by an occasional boat attack. Capturing a poor little American schooner was unworthy of their powers. The seizure of the French brig a few days ago was a creditable exploit; nothing extraordinary or out of the way, but well conceived and carried out. Still we look for greater things in the future. We are surprised that the pirates have not begun to purchase steamers. The exercise of their profession in these seas must be very profitable and would, we should think remunerate them for an enterprising outlay. It is understood that their agencies in Hongkong are managed in a regular and business-like way so that there would not be much risk to run, if they put a little more capital into the trade. They might buy a fast steamer, write to England for some Armstrong guns, have correspondents at Singapore to give them warning when to expect ships with valuable cargoes and really carry on very large and profitable operations. For them to have any apprehension on the score of measures which the British Government might be induced to take, would we think be needless. Of course a couple of gunboats permanently stationed, one at each entrance to the harbour, would completely stop their proceedings, but it would be childish to expect any such interference with the course of their trade. A long while ago Governor ROBINSON pointed out that the colony would benefit enormously by such an arrangement, but we see no sign of an intention on the part of the Home authorities, to meddle or make mischief between the community and the pirates.

News from the North.

THE Nepaul has arrived from Shanghai bringing dates from that place to the 20th instant.

There is the very little in the papers which can be called news, but we find the following item in the North-China Daily News:—

Recent advices from Soochow inform us that Li, Acting Futai, whose resignation we announced a few days ago, has been directed to continue the discharge of his duties, and make such domestic arrangements short of leaving his post as the exigencies of his situation may require. Robberies have lately become of frequent occurrence in the provincial capital. A few nights ago about one hundred thieves made an entrance into a large Yamen through a hole dug through a wall in the back and completely gutted the premises. They got in so quietly that the inmates, who were all the fast asleep, were bound and gagged before any alarm could be given. It was discovered that the robbers were soldiers belonging to the camp of Liu, Tung-ling of Kiangsu, and that their leader was a mandarin with a glass button and black feather, one of the officers attached to the camp. This man had formerly been a rebel chief and enjoyed the implicit confidence of the Chung Wang. The civil authorities were very back ward in interfering when they discovered that the robbers were attached to the command of so high an official as Liu, but he quickly settled the matter by decapitating the mandarin and, we believed, disbanding the soldiers.

Medical Missionary Society in China.

The Twenty Seventh Annual Meeting of this Society was held in Canton on Wednesday the 17th of January 1866, at the house of Messrs Olyphant & Co.

Present—O. H. Perry Esq., U.S. Consul, G. Nye, Jr., R. S. Dana Geo B. Glover, Ernest Deacon, W. M. Tilleston, Esqrs., Rev. A. P. Happer D.D., Rev. S. Stirliner, Rev. A. Kirkwood, Rev J. C. Smith, Rev R. H. Graves M.D. Rev C. F. Preston, Rev A. Folsom and J. G. Kerr M.D.

The chair was taken by O. H. Perry, Esq., Vice President, and the notice calling the meeting was read.

The minutes of the last Annual Meeting and of a special meeting held on the 21st of November, were read and approved.

The Meeting then proceeded to the election of officers, and the following were chosen for the ensuing year—

President—Thos. R. Colledge, M.D., F. R. S. Ed. (in England.)

Vice Presidents—S. Wells Williams LL.D., Hon P. Chomley, Warren Delano, Jr., Hon J. Weistall and John Dent Esqrs. Rev J. H. Grey M.A., O. H. Perry Esq. U. S. Consul, D. B. Robertson Esq. C.B. H.B.M. Consul, Wm. Nelson, H. Gibb, and C. Smith, Esqrs. and W. Kaus K.C.S., Rev D. Ball, M.D. Sir J. Bowring LL.D. and C. W. Murray, Esqr. (in England) Hon. Peter Parker, D. N. Spooner, John Heard, and James Purdon Esqrs (in U. S.)

Corresponding and Recording Secretary—J. G. Kerr, M.D.

Treasurer—Messrs. Russell & Co.

Auditor—Geo. B. Glover, Esq.

The Report of the Hospital in Canton was then presented to the meeting, and an abstract from it was read, from which it appeared that the number of out patients attended to was as follows.—

At the Society Hospital in Tsung shu	19,224
At the Kam-li-fan Hospital (4 months)	4,965
On trips to the country	2,400
Total	26,589
In patients	103
Surgical Operations	600
Children Vaccinated	837

The amount of money paid out for the rent of two hospitals, hire of assistants and coolies for medicines and aid to poor patients, was 1,400.50 of which sum $2.35. 53 were on account of the Hospital at Kam-li-fan. The receipts were,

Balance on hand from last year	$ 229.77
For transfer and medicines sold	151.35
For destitute	12.00
From Messrs Russell & Co.	1,000.00
TOTAL	$ 1393.12

Dr. KERR presented the estimated expenses for the current year, and in doing so states that on the first of September, the hospital at Kam-li-fan, which had been in connection with the London Mission, was transferred to his charge, and with it the entire stock of medicines on hand. It was after consultation with the officers and friends of the society that the responsibility of this step was taken, and with a full belief that the society as well as the friends of this well known and widely useful hospital would be unwilling to see it suspended.

If it is the will of the society to approve of this course and to continue the hospital in operation, he would ask for an appropriation of $500. in addition to the $1000 usually granted hitherto for the expenses of the Society's operations in Canton. Dr. Kerr stated that he would be able to carry on the two hospitals together, at a cost much less than the aggregate expenses when they were separate.

Dr. Happer remarked that on one of the friends of the Society who had been consulted, it would be proper for him to give the reasons which led him to approve of Dr. Kerr's taking charge of the Kam-li-fan hospital. It is known that that hospital had been established in 1842 by Dr. Hobson, and had become widely known throughout all the surrounding country.

It had been liberally supported by many members of the community who could not see it closed without feelings of deep regret. Dr. H. further stated his belief that many members of the community would be glad to see the hospital continued under the auspices of this society, and that contributions from its former supporters will be cheerfully given to meet the increased grant which Dr. Kerr has asked for to enable him to continue the benevolent operations of the Kam-li-fau hospital. He has therefore at the time no hesitation in recommending him to take the course he did, and he believed it would be cordially approved of by the Society.

Dr. Graves asked for a grant of $150 for the expenses of the dispensaries under his care.

On motion of Mr Glover, seconded by Mr Deacon, it was resolved that the above sums be granted for the expenses of the current year.

The Treasurer's report for 1864 (which was received too late for the action of the last annual meeting) was read and approved. The Treasurer's report for 1865 had not been received. The report of the committee of management was then read and accepted, and a vote of thanks passed for their services. The report stated that the purchase of a site for a new hospital had been completed, the money paid, and the deeds signed, sealed and recorded in the office of the Namhoi magistrate. The lot is 82 feet front by 120 feet deep. The whole expense of the ground and the legal transfer to Society was $2400.

The report of the committee contained two recommendations which were then taken up and acted on.

On motion of Mr Dann, seconded by Mr Nye, it was resolved that the amount of funds now in the treasury (about $2900) be appropriated to the commencement of buildings for the new Canton hospital, and that an appeal be made to the public for more funds to complete them.

On motion of Dr. Graves, seconded by Mr Dana it was resolved—that Article IX of the Constitution be amended so that the Board of Trustees shall consist of the Treasurer, that is, the senior partner, residing in Hongkong of the firm who are Treasurers, the Auditor of Accounts, and the Recording Secretary.

On motion of Mr. Preston, seconded by Mr Tilleston, it was resolved that the following be adopted as one of the By-laws, viz. That while the officers are to be elected annually in case it should be impossible to hold an election, the incumbents shall continue in office for all legal purposes until their successors are chosen.

On motion of Dr. Happer, seconded by Mr Nevius, it was resolved that the constitution and By-laws be published with the annual report, and that the fourth article be altered to read—the time of Annual Meeting shall be in Canton in the third week of January, or at such time and place as the officers may agree upon.

On motion of Mr Nye, seconded by Mr Folsom it was resolved that the Committee of management be authorised to proceed with the erection of buildings.

When the business of the meeting was concluded Dr Kerr mentioned that he had received a letter from Dr Hobson authorising him to bring out a new edition of the series of works which he had published before leaving China. Whereupon, on motion of Mr Preston, seconded by Dr Happer it was resolved that the Meeting here with pleasure that Dr Kerr has been authorized to publish a new edition of the Valuable Medical and Philosophical works of Dr Hobson, and they would recommend the enterprise to the favorable consideration of those who wish to aid in the introduction of western sciences among the Chinese.

On motion of Mr Deacon, seconded by Mr Stringer, a vote of thanks was passed to the chairman to Dr Hobs and Wong Fun, and also Dr Graves Rev. Mr Krolevsk and to Dr Kerr, after which the meeting adjourned.

The pay of the Police.

(To the Editor of the "Daily Press")

HONGKONG, 19th January, 1866.

SIR.—While you are engaged enquiring into the abuses of the Hongkong Police Force, may I venture to suggest that for the benefit of all parties concerned you sift the matter thoroughly and enquire into the causes of those abuses, with accounts of which your journal seems daily, I think that they are owing to my own opinion, an ordinary degree of pay, and may be easily remedied if any gentleman of standing would take the matter in hand, and see it through.

It may not be out of place for me first to state some of the grievances under which the Police are at present and have been suffering. We will take first the principal item, the pay. When, may I ask, is the miserable pittance of $28 per month, for a man of even ordinary intelligence and physique to risk hourly his health, and very frequently his life, for the protection of the lives, and property of the public of Hongkong? Out of this ridiculously small sum he (the European constable) has to provide himself with food—to keep himself in very ordinary rations I have no doubt you Sir are aware will entail an expenditure of at least $18. Again under the same item the expenses for clothing must be charged at the least $5, although that may under certain circumstances be sometimes shared with other individuals of the Force.

Again with regard to clothing the before mentioned sum must pay for everything in the shape of underclothing we being supplied by the Government with only the following articles, viz:—

For summer wear I serge coat, 1 pair cotton pantaloons (only a shade superior to Queen's bags,) and 1 pair Serge do, which to boys, bear of use we should have been issued some months since, instead of which they have only just now been served out after lying in the store during the time they were of any use and are now rotten and perfectly worthless.

For winter wear we are entitled to receive 1 Cloth Coat, and 1 ditto Pantaloons. In addition to the above we receive 1 Cap which requiries to undergo some mysterious manipulations in the hands of the tailor before it can be worn, and the above is the case with all of our other apparel which you will please to observe is the whole of the pay which we receive. Now Sir, is it not of the greatest importance that the Police should be clothed in a decent manner, and that they should be allowed sufficient to enable them to do so, and not be obliged to have recourse to the pawnbroker's shop, as is the case with many of them at present. Again I would ask, is it not of the greatest importance that the Police should be allowed sufficient to enable them to live in a decent manner, and not be obliged to have recourse to the pawnbroker's shop, as is the case with many of them at present. Again I would ask, is it not of the greatest importance that the Police should be allowed sufficient to enable them to live in a decent manner, and not be obliged to live in the filthy dens which they are at present compelled to do

Progress of the Russian-American Telegraph.

(From the "Alta California.")

The progress of the work on the American-Russian Telegraph is most satisfactory. The reports of the Superintendent and his party, who have just returned from the summer's work, are very favorable. The route has nearly all been determined. A number of doubtful geographical questions of much importance to the location have been solved. Behring Straits and the sea south of it were sounded, and the shore examined, and both bottom and shore were found well suited for the safety of a submarine cable. New Archangel, St. Michael, St. Paul's, Petropaulow-vski, and other Russian stations, were visited. The Russian officials everywhere received the expedition with great attention. The Governor of Russian-America, who is also Director of the Russian-American Fur Company, a very extensive and influential organization, gave to Colonel Bulkley a circular instructing his subordinates to give him every assistance that he might want, even to furnishing him with men as his requisition. The Indians and their chiefs on both the American and the Asiatic sides are in constant trade and on friendly terms with the Russians and promised to be friend the Americans. When the expedition started from here last summer, it was supposed that the river known at the Kwichpak, on the American coast, opening into Norton Sound, in lat. 63°, with a delta 120 miles wide, to the, became at the stream called the Yanoon in the interior. At Fort St. Michael's, Col. Bulkley met a native who had followed the Yanoon down to the mouth of the Kwichpak, and thus settled that question which was important, since the line will follow the river for some hundreds of miles. The survey and soundings in Behrings Straits, about latitude 66°, were made by the steamer Wright; these three degrees further south, by the barque Golden Gate. It was ascertained that, in the few places where for poles is lacking on the American side, the transportation will not be expensive.

Although information has been obtained that a good route can be made for the line on both sides of the ocean, and although there will probably be little change from the general route already selected, still the final location will not be made until the reports of the exploring parties are received. Of these there are five now in the field, three in Asia and two in America. Major Abasa, who left here in July last, touched at Petropaulowski, where he left some of his party with instructions to examine the Peninsula of Kamschatka to Penjinsk, at the head of the Gulf of Penjinsk. He has gone to Nicolaieffsk with the remainder of his party, as they will start from that place by land to locate the line to Penjinsk, which is the point where he will meet Lieut. Maline, who landed at the mouth of the Andyr river. After fixing the route between the Anadyr and Penjinsk, Lieut. Maline will explore the country from Anadyr to Klover Bay, in latitude 64° 28' North. This will conclude the examination on the Asiatic side.

On the American side the work is to advance with equal speed. Mr. Kennicott was landed at the mouth of the Kwikpak, with instructions to follow the stream up to Fort Selkirk, and thence turn southward, by way of Pence river, where he will probably meet Major Pope who has gone northward from Fraser River. Thus the connection will be made. Mr. Kennicott has at his disposal a little steamer of ten tons, which will be able to ascend the Kwichpak at least 400 miles. In British Columbia, Mr Clendenning is at work putting up the poles, and he has completed that part of the work to the extent of 600 miles. During last summer one steamer and four sailing vessels were employed. Next summer they will return with a number of laborers and a dozen parties will be landed at different points, with instructions to put up the poles with all speed. It is hoped that in 1867 the line will be completed from New Westminster, near the mouth of Fraser River, to Nicolaieffsk, near the mouth of the Amoor River, thus completing the telegraphic connection between New York and London.

The Russian-American telegraphic enterprise is the rival of the Atlantic cable. One is undertaken chiefly by Americans, the other by Englishmen. The two great Anglo-Saxon nations have engaged in a contest to see which can succeed first in accomplishing one of the greatest triumphs of civilization—which shall first bind the Old World and the New together by the magic wire of the electro-magnetic telegraph. We trust that each will drive its own undertaking ahead with every energy, and whichever wins the game will have the applause of all Christendom.

The Late Capt. Gronow.

A Paris correspondent writes as follows respecting this gentleman, whose death has been announced:—

Paris has lost one of this city's few remaining English celebrities. Captain Gronow expired yesterday. Those who have known Paris, even as far back as the days of Napoleon I, if not personally acquainted with Captain Gronow, were familiar with his personal appearance and gallant reputation. In the days of the Citizen King he was in the society of the British subjects known as the Embassy, and amongst the best of the French Aristocracy. Of late, advanced years had dictated a less conspicuous mode of life. Within a week of his death, however, Captain Gronow was seen as usual in the streets of Paris. Who does not remember that small, neat, soldier-like figure, so erect in 1835 as when he was drilled at St. James's Palace in 1812? who does not remember that handsome old man's face, with the quick eye that made him the best pistol shot of his own or perhaps any other day? Who that knew him ever conversed with Gronow long without hearing an anecdote of the past Courts, camps, and miscellaneous fashionable world? The familiar figure will never more be seen; the last reminiscence is told; and the long and busy life has reached the grave. It was in 1862 that Captain Gronow published the first volume of his "Reminiscences," and in that book will be found the most conspicuous events of his eventful life. It was written in Paris, with the assistance of some literary friends, to whom had been admitted the fragmentary manuscript. Two other volumes of a similar nature have since appeared; and I believe a fourth volume of anecdotes is now in the press, to be published by Messrs. Smith, Elder, and Co. The four volumes did not exhaust his store of gossiping narratives about all classes of society; but during the last half century many of the remaining fragments are of too personal and domestic a nature to be given to the world. Capt. Gronow, the son of a Welsh gentleman, commenced his military career in 1813, when he joined the expedition to Spain under the Duke of Wellington. After going through the existence of that kind, he returned to England. At that time one of the conspicuous and fashionable men about town, a gallant in the drawing-room, an amusing gossiper at the clubs. In fact, one of that sort of men who are occasionally taken up instinctively by royalty and some of the higher members of aristocratic society. The demands of the service soon took him back to the Continent again, and he found himself at the battle of Waterloo, an interesting description of which is given in the first volume of the deceased soldier's "Reminiscences." The last known events of Captain Gronow's life occurred when the allies entered Paris. The young soldier was one of the fashionable lions of the city, and passed his time, according to military custom, in the enjoyment of several European nations. Society was characterised by the prevalence of gambling and duelling, which at that time were the prevailing habits and customs of the rollicking allies in Paris. Brave as a lion, an excellent shot, and a man by no means inclined to except an intended slight or an insult, such as Frenchmen in those days took infinite delight in addressing to Englishmen, he found himself identified, both personally and as second, in several duels. No English officer more gallantly upheld the honour and chivalry of the British army than Captain Gronow. Some of his duelling adventures have been made use of by novelists and dramatists. Gronow, however, never referred to these accounts of himself, and in his "Anecdotes and Reminiscences" he has studiously avoided the narrative of many personal events which would have formed not the least attractive chapters of his gossiping miscellanies. His social career, his acquaintance with and recollection of men of the times, from perhaps the most attractive features of his richly-stored mind. It is only necessary to turn to the volumes of his "Reminiscences," and you find that he was identified with the most prominent statesmen, men of letters, dandies, Jew money-lenders, ambassadors, and celebrities of the fashionable world, such as Brummel and D'Orsay. Captain Gronow passed many years of his long life in Paris, and was as well known to French as to English society. Many of the old soldiers of the days of Napoleon I, and the succeeding Bourbons were his cherished friends. Nor was he unknown to the Sovereign who now rules Imperial France. He was twice married, his second alliance having taken place within the last 20 years. He leaves four children and a youthful and amiable wife to lament the loss of an affectionate father and distinguished man of the time. The immediate cause of his death was violent hemorrhage from the nose, which yielded to remedies, and was then succeeded by a fatal attack of erysipelas.—(Post.)
